Summary: KT Corp. Jun 11

Description:
Abstract
The rating on Korea-based KT Corp. (A/Stable/--) reflects the company's dominant position in the Korean fixed-line telecommunications market, improved competitiveness in the wireless business, strong operating cash flow, and modest financial risk profile. Constraining factors include declines in revenue from fixed-line telephony services, a saturated and competitive Korean telecommunications market, and government pressure to cut prices. KT, which the government of Korea owned until 2002, is the dominant fixed-line operator in Korea. As of March 2011, it controlled about 73% of the domestic market for telephony services, including Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP). Using its dominant position in Korea's telecommunications market, and backed by a good brand image and superior network coverage, the company has established a leading position in...
