Reasoner Based Ontology Query Machine. Edition No. 1

Description: The ontology query machine is an existing (already implementing and working) solution to search and update ontology's using the reasoned Pellet. Made accessible to a public community by a web service driven web interface the ontology cannot just be searched but also updated and enlarged. The user does not have to know - though it's also possible to indicate complete, user defined SPARQL and RDQL queries - the query language but the keywords (properties, etc.) and their possible value of the ontology and basic functionality of the 'simple search'. For the update a complete and sound new or updated definition of the stored entities must be provided (OWL).
