Research Methodology in Social Sciences and Management. Edition No. 1

Description: Research Models as a part of Research Methodology course are taught in major post graduate degree programmes and employed in research by both of social scientists and management experts. An emerging economy India with fast economic growth is experiencing increasing number of social and corporate issues e.g. crime on women, default of bank loans because of inability to manage business caused by lack of education, poor quality of management education imparted by growing number of B-schools etc. Addressing these problems and designing remedial policy measures call for the skill of modeling. This book includes seven models on diverse social and management issues. The target audience includes post graduate students in Social Sciences, Policy Science, Law and Management, legislators, bureaucrats and economists of Governments and industries. Key features of the models in this book are contemporary issues, easy-to-understand but innovative techniques, policy research and futuristic analysis.
