China Likely to Manage a Soft Landing May 04

Description: Abstract
Standard & Poor's Ratings Services sees no immediate need to revise the positive outlook on its sovereign ratings on the People's Republic of China (foreign currency ratings BBB+/Positive/A-2; local currency ratings BBB+/Positive/A-2), taking, as it does, the view that, while a hard landing cannot be ruled out, a soft landing is the more likely outcome for the country's high flying, but apparently earthbound, economy. The sovereign ratings were last raised in February 2004, an upgrade that was intended to reflect greater resilience in the economy as a result of persistent progress in structural reforms. The central government's improving revenue base was also a reason for the rating action. Standard & Poor's stands by those opinions despite recent media reports and...

Standard and Poors RatingsXpress Credit Research provides in-depth coverage of international corporates, financial institutions, insurance companies, utilities, sovereigns and structured finance programs. RatingsXpress Credit Research lets users determine the credit rating of holdings and identify key factors underlying an issuer's creditworthiness, distinguishes the different risk exposures for new and existing deals, and provides an understanding of how their analysts interpret key regulatory, political and environmental events and their economic impact.

Research Type: Commentary
Criteria articles describe the thought process and methodology Standard & Poor's analysts use in determining ratings. These commentary pieces discuss both the quantitative (economic and financial) and qualitative (business analysis and caliber of management) aspects of the analysis, as well as legal issues.
