Introduction

Sweet home California

A 2006 survey found that most San Franciscans do not use taxis regularly; around one-third never use them or almost never, while a further 22% use them only a few times a year. In itself, this suggests that there is significant scope to expand the mode share of taxis if the industry can offer customers incentives to ride taxis and improve quality of service. However, it is difficult to quantify the exact potential of the industry without any prior tradition of taxi use among the general population.
