
Description:
Few areas of pharmaceuticals have seen the fast-moving developments in the marketplace that the vaccine market has in 2007 and 2008. Since Kalorama Information last updated Kalorama Information’s The World Market for Vaccines in the first quarter of last year, new products and better than expected profits have transformed the vaccine marketplace. Approvals that have been granted for products such as RotaTeq, Pentacel, Adacel and Zostavax and FluMist are now impacting the market. The launch and execution of the first successful cancer vaccine product, Merck's Gardasil, has had dramatic and surprising results. Other products also exceeded revenue expectations. The competitive dynamics have changed with merger activity, and many new products are on the way.

Kalorama vaccine market analyst Allison Sahoo's exhaustive research and analysis of interviews with key decision makers in the market includes the following:

Review of Products in the Market
Current World Market Size for Pediatric and Adult Vaccines
Segmented Revenues and Forecasts to 2013 by Category
Over 45 Charts and Tables To Make Information Accessible
Important Vaccines and Immunization Schedules and Statistics
Discussion of Issues and Trends in the Vaccine Market
Profiles of 15 Key Vaccine Companies
Thorough Review of the Vaccine Pipeline and Possible Impact of New Products

Who are the main players in the vaccine market? What opportunities are available for pharmaceutical companies or investors from this market? What are the potential challenges vaccine competitors must deal with? What will be the impact of the first successful cancer product? What is the significance of at least one major acquisition to affect this industry? These questions and more are tackled in this report.

Current revenues and revenue forecasts to 2013 are included for the following pediatric vaccine categories:

- DTaP & DTP Vaccines
- Hep Vaccines
- HiB Vaccines
- MMR Vaccines
- Combination Vaccines
- Pneumococcal Vaccines
- Polio Vaccines
- Varicella Vaccines
- Other Pediatric Vaccines

As well as Revenues and Forecasts to 2012 for the following adult vaccine categories:

- Influenza Vaccines
- Hepatitis Vaccines
- Pneumococcal Vaccines
- Travel, DT and other Adult Vaccines
- Cervical Cancer

This is a rapidly changing marketplace and knowledge of the R&D pipeline is essential to truly understand what is happening in vaccines. Vaccines in development are discussed in this report, including vaccines for the following conditions:

- Enterotoxigenic Escherichia coli
- Parainfluenza Virus Type 3
- Pneumococcal Vaccines
- Respiratory Syncytial Virus
This Kalorama Information report was created with a primary research effort - interviews with market experts in the vaccine market who shared insights, informed of new trends and helped to construct models, supplemented by secondary research in company, medical and trade literature. Marketing and Business Development executives, strategic planners, research and development executives, as well as investors and financial consultants are among those who will find this a useful resource.
