China-India Business Monthly

Description: The author offers China-India Business Monthly Report for companies in China and India, which combines news reporting with informative regular insights that helps the investors in both the countries to assess the investment opportunities.

China and India hold important places in world economics and there has been a fervent renewed interest in trade and industry between them. India and China—two massive, neighboring Asian emerging economies, each home to over a billion people—are on the way to forming one of the world's largest trade relationships. The trade between the two developing nations has increased rapidly in the last decade. According to a study by the PHD Chamber of Commerce, an industry trade group in New Delhi, China has become India's largest trading partner, with Sino-Indian trade reaching $49.5 billion during the first nine months of the fiscal year 2014. China's newfound role as India's top trading partner is a sign of growing "south to south" trade.

The objective of this monthly is to offer each month a database of useful information that plays a crucial role in the ongoing China-India trade and investments. The monthly is specifically designed to provide investors with the present scenario of investment trends, opportunities, helpful resources, regulatory developments, orientation of China and India prospective business locations, latest trade statistics, important forthcoming business events/fairs, and current rankings.

Our research team continuously updates news from established news portals, regional and international primary news sources, business media sites, company websites and stock exchanges. At the end of the month, our research experts identify those news stories that have played a crucial role in Indo-China investments in the month and provide an overall report on the same with supportive informative features, profiles and exhibits.
