India Leather Chemicals Market Forecast and Opportunities, 2020

Description: According to "India Leather Chemicals Market Forecast & Opportunities, 2020", the country's leather chemicals market is projected to cross USD700 million by 2020. Wet-end process accounts for the highest consumption of leather chemicals followed by Beamhouse and finishing processes. In 2014, Southern states accounted for the largest market share, followed by Northern and Eastern regions, and this trend is expected to continue over next five years with Southern and Northern regions collectively accounting for over two-thirds of the country's leather chemicals market by 2020. Favorable government regulations promoting exports of leather goods are significantly contributing towards boosting demand for leather chemicals in India. Presently, BASF, Stahl and Lanxess are some of the leading suppliers of leather chemicals in India.

Leather chemicals are used in the processing of leather to obtain finished leather and other leather products. These chemicals are broadly divided in two categories namely basic chemicals and speciality chemicals. Basic chemicals are the chemicals used in large volumes for processing and making finished leather from raw skin/hide of animals; whereas, speciality chemicals are used for imparting specific properties to the leather such as durability, flexibility, finish, etc. On account of growing demand for Indian leather products in China, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka coupled with increasing preference of Indian consumer towards high-quality leather products, the demand for leather chemicals is growing at a moderate pace in the country. India's huge livestock population and high production capacity tanneries are among the major factors supporting the growth of leather industry, and thereby the country's leather chemical industry.
