According to the report "Global Gems & Jewelry Market Forecast & Opportunities, 2020", the global market for gems & jewelry is projected to grow at a CAGR of around 6% during 2015-20. In 2014, the gold jewelry segment dominated the global gems & jewelry market, followed by diamond and platinum jewelry. Demand for precious gem stones has also been growing due to changing preferences of younger generation from gold to colored gemstone, platinum and palladium jewelry. Growing brand consciousness is also boosting sales of branded jewelry in developed as well as developing economies, and this trend is expected to gain strength over the next five years. Few of the major branded gems & jewelry companies with operations spread across the globe include Tiffany & Co., Gitanjali, Signet, LVMH, Chow Tai Fook, and Richemont.

Global market for gems and jewelry is projected to grow significantly over the next few years and offer a plethora of untapped opportunities for small as well as large players. India and China continue to be the largest gems & jewelry markets, predominantly on account of large and continuously expanding middle class population and traditional inclination of consumers towards investing into gold in both of these countries. On the other hand, demand for designer and branded jewelry is particularly high in North America due to higher purchasing power of consumers and rising demand for premium products. Increasing sales of jewelry through online sales platforms and growing demand for stylish jewelry from young population is also boosting gems and jewelry sales, globally.
