United States Defence and Security Report 2015

Description: The United States defence military complex is the biggest in the world. United States military expenditure is the highest in the world, driven by government commitment to various peace keeping missions and large number of armed force deployments, in addition to a sizeable domestic terrorism threat.

We believe that the United States defence budget will increase and be re-oriented to take account of the threat posed by Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) and to address a diverse range of international commitments.

United States faces a complex security scenario: ISIL is posing a major security risk in the Middle East to the United States and its allies. United States also sees necessary to maintain military presence in Afghanistan until at least December 2015. These two facts also increase the potential of domestic terrorism.

The need to contain Russia's initiatives in Europe determines its participation in permanent military exercises and educational exchanges with Ukraine. Finally, focus remains on the Asia Pacific region and the "pivoted" stance the US is implementing, trying to balance China's influence, through engaging in countless military exercises and defence cooperation initiatives with regional players. The mentioned security trends will drive US Defence expenditure in years to come.
