Global Digital Education Content Market 2015-2019

Description: About digital education content
Digital education content comprises a digital curriculum, such as e-learning for K-12, higher studies, and skill-based training. This content is available to educational institutions in standard and customized formats. Institutions can procure the content either by paying fees or access it through subscriptions.

Increased adoption of blended learning has influenced market growth. Blended learning has become popular with educational institutions and corporates, and has benefitted students and teachers as it combines the best of traditional classroom and online-based training.

The analysts forecast the global digital education content market to grow at a CAGR of 8.13% over the period 2014-2019.
