Argentina Water Enhancer Market-Growth, Trends and Forecast (2016 - 2021)

Description: The Argentinian beverages market is a very prominent one in the country, as indicated by their rapidly increasing volumes sales. The market is estimated to grow at a CAGR of 10% during the forecasted period of 2015-2020. The main reason for the success is dependent on the perceived benefits of the water enhancer products compared to other beverages, and the superior flavor and taste it adds to simple water.

The importance of the consumption of water has deeply percolated in the increasingly health consciousness consumer base. The rise of income levels, urbanization, and the associated hectic lifestyles are a major boost for the enhancer market. Like many other developing nations, Argentina is also associated with low consumer awareness and market penetration, and this effect is further amplified by the relative newness of the products. The use of extensive marketing and consumer interaction is expected to provide long term sustainability to the market. Water enhancers are trying to compete with the diet sodas segments, a major product line in the health drinks sector.
