Global Handheld Label Printer Market 2015-2019

Description: Market analysis of handheld label printer

The market research analyst predicts the global handheld label printer market to grow at a CAGR of 7% during the forecast period. The need for proximal and immediate access to label printers by the mobile workforce, globally, is driving the growth of this market. Handheld label printers are lightweight and can work without being connected to a computer, providing the much-needed flexibility to a whole host of professionals such as florists, retail supervisors, and caterers.

The customization provided by vendors to specific industry segments is anticipated to boost the market growth during the forecast period. Certain end-user segments may require more sturdy labels to tag products or warrant the use of certain features more than the others while others need primary labels with standard symbols and alphabet. For instance, Brother, a key vendor, has introduced the PT-E550WVP printer that allows electricians to print labels that are compliant with the identification requirements of the wiring regulations. The labels have strong weather resistant capabilities, are durable against friction, water, and chemicals.
