
Description: The Asia Pacific Non Lethal Weapons Market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.74% till 2020. There has been a trend of rising protests in the Asia Pacific region in the 21st century with the latest situation in South Korea against the United States Military forces being the latest example. Singapore, which was synonymous with peace and order, has also started seeing protests, demonstrations as the highly educated public has now started questioning and criticizing the government. India and China continue to be the hotbeds of protests and demonstrations. Due to the rising requirement of states to maintain peace and rising homeland security budgets, the Asia Pacific Non Lethal Weapons Market will register the fastest rate of growth in the world. The Asia Pacific Non Lethal Weapons Market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.74% till 2020.

The law enforcement agencies of some nations like India, Vietnam, Thailand, Indonesia are woefully underequipped to tackle peaceful protests, resulting in incidents like in India, where the law enforcement agencies used bullets to quell peaceful protestors. The situation is similar in many countries, which are not equipped at all to handle internal situations. Directed Energy weapons, specifically Taser Guns, are in extremely low numbers in the enforcement agencies of this region. This would result in growing popularity for this segment in the region, over the coming 5 years.

Due to rise in crimes especially in India and China, pepper spray will register extremely fast rates of growth within the civilian population. Particularly in India, pepper spray industry will register tremendous rates of growth, as the crimes against women have spiked up in recent times and the awareness amongst the general public has increased.
