Consumer and Market Insights: Feminine Hygiene Market in Japan

Description:
The Japan's Feminine Hygiene market is forecast to register negative growth in volume and marginal growth in value terms during 2015-2020. The Sanitary Pads category will have the largest volume share. Japan’s fast aging population will fuel the demand for everyday Feminine Hygiene products such as Pantiliners as a protection against light incontinence. Furthermore a rising number of working women with busy lifestyles are demanding more convenient and enhanced leakage protection products which will boost the demand for Tampons. This is the only category expected to witness growth during 2015-2020.

Key Findings:
- A declining birth rate and an ageing population are creating new dynamics in the consumer goods market in Japan
- The Feminine Hygiene market in Japan is forecast to register positive growth in value terms during 2015-2020 after registering a decline during 2010-2015
- The Tampons category will register the fastest growth in value terms during 2015-2020
- Sanitary Pads is the leading value category in Japan’s Feminine Hygiene market
- Paper and Board is the most commonly used Packaging Materials in the Feminine Hygiene market
- Aging Japanese women are fuelling demand for Pantiliners as a protection against mild incontinence
