Global Military Helicopter Market - 2016 - Market Dynamics & Competitive Landscape, OEM Strategies & Plans, Market & Technology Trends, Challenges & Growth Opportunities, Strategic Market Outlook to 2025

Description: The Global Demand for Military Helicopters is likely to witness a spurt over near to medium term driven a number of drivers & favorable factors, which include, rapidly evolving global geopolitical dynamics & equations marked by increasing threat from extremism, terrorism, resurgence of conventional state based threats, compounding nature of overall threat perception, political instability across some regions and withering down of traditional, rule based world order. These drivers are all cumulatively likely to drive the demand for military helicopters significantly going forward with a key capability role likely to be performed by these machines with their unique capabilities, especially, for anti-insurgency bound missions, anti-submarine warfare (ASW) & for special forces based operations. The traditionally significant role of military helicopters in the force structure of armed forces globally, thus, is bound to grow & expand further over medium term with the emerging global scenario. Additionally, technological evolution with the development of next generation compound helicopter designs & quad tilt-rotorcrafts has already heralded the advent of a new era that is likely to witness a significant expansion of the operational spectrum, capabilities & performance threshold of these machines as against traditional helicopters which is likely to eventually transform & redefine their role besides enhancing overall effectiveness for conducting a wide range of military missions & operations while offering optimized operating costs & total cost of ownership. Thus, the medium to long term view of the global military helicopter market is promising with presence of strong fundamentals and long term, sustainable growth drivers & enablers.

The demand & acquisition scenario for military helicopters is likely to witness a surge with improving defense budgetary scenario across most global markets fuelled by ongoing geopolitical conflicts across some regions & increasing threat perception. Global Defense spending, thus, is likely to witness a slight to moderate uptick over near to medium term globally driven a combination of favorable factors emanating from both demand as well as the supply side. The Asia-Pacific region is projected to spearhead global demand for military helicopters over the next decade with a number of states poised to replace their ageing helicopter platforms as they expand military capabilities to counter growing threat, assertiveness & military build-up by Russia & China. A number of nations in the region have already initiated or are in the process of pursuing large scale, long-term, scratch-up military helicopter development & production programs worth billions in collaboration with international OEMs, led by South Korea, Japan & India. Amongst traditional markets, Europe is already focusing on expanding capabilities & working towards plugging existing capability gaps through acquisition of military hardware along-with active pursuit of joint development programs. In the United States, large, big ticket defense programs, especially, the Joint Multi Role – Future Vertical Lift (JMR-FVL) is likely to hold the key given the scale, strategic nature & the overall magnitude of the opportunity which the program is likely to create for the industry over long term.
