How to Qualify Lead Investigators for CAPA

Description: Regulatory expectations are a consistent approach to investigations/CAPAs within our industry. A qualification program for your investigators can do just that. Do you have the assurance your investigators are Qualified Lead Investigators? If investigations and CAPAs are written by individuals with various levels of expertise in your organization, a qualification program can help the consistency and quality of your company’s investigations and CAPAs. Qualifying lead investigators ensures your investigations and CAPAs are written to the standards required in the regulations. A robust Lead Investigator qualification program allows your investigators to develop the skills and behaviors required to complete an investigation/CAPA with full competency.

The benefits of qualifying your lead investigators include investigations/CAPAs that:

- Lower the chance of regulatory findings associated with depth and scope
- Document your product impact and quality decisions
- Support your quality systems, products and processes
