Shop Drawings and Other Construction Submittals: Legal and Engineering Perspectives

Description: Understand the engineer’s responsibilities relative to submittals and shop drawings, and how they fit into the design and construction process.

If you are a public or private owner, construction manager, contractor, subcontractor, consultant, architect or engineer, this topic will help you understand the purpose and intent of submittals and shop drawings, and how and where they fit into the design and construction process. With an emphasis on the recommended practices of the Construction Specification Institute (CSI) and contract language of the Engineers Joint Contract Document Committee (EJCDC) this topic presents the engineer’s and contractor’s responsibilities relative to submittals and shop drawings, with particular emphasis on the benefits and risks of the shop drawing and submittal process.

Learning Objectives:
- You will be able to describe the purpose and intent of shop drawings and submittals.
- You will be able to identify contract language associated with submittals.
- You will be able to discuss other submittals.
- You will be able to review risk and liabilities associated with submittals.

Contents:
- Shop Drawings vs. Submittals
  - What Are Shop Drawings?
  - Why Shop Drawings?
