Packaging Printing Market - By Application (Health Care, Food and Beverages, Consumer Goods) By Technology (Digital, Screen Printing, Flexography) By Printing Ink (UV Double Ink, Water based Ink) By Package - Forecast (2016-2021)

Description: Packaging printing provides a wide range of benefits that includes enhanced aesthetic appeal, better communicability, and enables protection from counterfeit. The market for packaging printing is strongly driven by the growth in the packaging industry along with the growing demand for aesthetic appeal and innovative printing. High disposable income has enabled the end users to spend more on such types of packaging, which facilitate ease of use. Most importantly, the changing consumer preference has triggered the use of printed packaging in day-to-day life.

With this growth in the packaging Printing market, there is growth in import of Printing and allied machinery, but there is also increasing imports of the indigenous printing and package machinery. The major European suppliers of printing equipment and machinery are increasingly catering to the high end technology and automation needed for the markets. They are no longer in a position to meet the requirements of the both traditional and rural markets, where they are yet to convert and high technology is demand. This traditional markets offer Indian manufacturers an edge to produce more cost products for such market. The emerging markets in Asia and Africa have provided sample incentive to the Indian manufacturers of Printing and Packaging machinery. At that time India has achieved the distinction of being one of the largest manufacturers of printing machines.
