
Description: The term "Specialized Aircraft" is a very broad definition for the particular class of the aircrafts, and can apply to any fighter built to serve a particular purpose. This class of aircrafts includes majorly fighter aircrafts but other aircraft such as interceptor fighters and troop transports, etc, are also considered specialized as they are present in much greater numbers and variety than other specialized aircraft and are therefore categories of their own. Globally increasing terrorism activities and increased defence budget of the major developing nations is expected to remain key growth driver for the special mission aircrafts during the period of study.

Geographically North America accounts for the largest market shares in global special mission aircraft market owing to highest defence spending amongst all nations across the world, strong, superior and advanced aircraft fleet base to tackle and handle every situation across the world. North America was followed by Europe and Asia-Pacific as second and third largest market for special mission aircraft market. Asia Pacific is projected to have fastest growth, owing to rapidly increasing defence spending by major economies in the region like Indian and China to tackle and protect its territories from the unrest and terrorist activities in the region and also increase their contribution in the global peacekeeping activities.

This report identifies the global special mission aircraft market size in for the year 2014-2016, and forecast of the same for year 2021. It also highlights the market drivers, restraints, growth indicators, challenges, and other key aspects with respect to global special mission aircraft market.
