PESTLE Analysis of Mexico 2016

Description: The Mexican economy is dominated by the service sector, which contributed approximately 63% to the total GDP in 2015. The major contributors of the service sector are financial institutions and real estate, public administration, and social activities. The GDP growth rate of Mexico was hampered by the global financial crisis and recession in 2009, and it declined to negative 4.7%; however, the Mexican economy had managed to recover with a growth rate of 5.1% in 2010. The growth was driven by a dynamic external demand and domestic demand. The country's strategic location and supportive governmental policies strengthen the industrial activities.

The author has analysed the political, economic, social, technological, legal, and environmental factors of Mexico, and has come up with a comprehensive research report “PESTLE Analysis of Mexico 2016.” This report provides an analysis of the Mexican economy from historical, current, and future perspectives. SWOT analysis, forecast and scenario analysis, and risk analysis of Mexico has also been included in this report. The report also includes forecast of the economic growth through 2021.

Thus, the economy successfully runs on a well-diversified base by increasing investments in the service sector.
