A-Share Listed House Construction and Decoration Companies in China - Profiles and Financial Data

Description: The housing construction industry involves industry, civil and public buildings (architecture and structures) projects. In the 21st century, China's real estate industry developed rapidly under the encouragement of government policies, and fixed asset investment has been one of the major drivers of China's economic growth, benefitting the development of China's house construction industry.

In 2016, 7,589.75 million m² of properties were under construction, increasing by 3.2% YOY. The area of residential properties under construction was 5,213.1 million m², increasing by 1.9%. New start-up projects cost 1,669.28 million m², increasing by 8.1%. The growth rate was up by 0.5 percentage points. New residential projects cost 1,159.11 million m², increasing by 8.7%. Finished properties cost 1,061.28 million m², increasing by 6.1%. The growth rate was down by 0.3 percentage points. Finished residential properties cost 771.85 million m², increasing by 4.6%.

The architectural decoration industry is an integral part of the construction industry. Architectural decoration refers to protection of the main body and improving the physical performance, function and appearance of architectures. It is the process of applying decorative materials or decorations on the interior, exterior and in the space of architectures. China's architectural decoration industry took off in mid 1980s. The development of the architectural decoration industry is in close relation with the country's economy. China's fast economic growth provides strong support for the development of its architectural decoration industry. The take-off of the architectural decoration industry followed the fast economic growth and the marketization of China's residential properties. For one thing, a better economy brings about demand for decoration in public and commercial buildings (such as shopping venues and restaurants). For another, the rapid growth rate of the real estate industry in early 2000s facilitates the rapid growth of the residential decoration industry.

In recent years, the public architectural decoration industry embraced another high time granted by grand international events such as Beijing Olympics and Shanghai Expo. The urbanization development, which started in late 1990s, drove the rapid growth of China's real estate and construction industries, which facilitated the rapid growth of the architectural decoration industry. It has been growing at over 10% per year and the value of production exceeded CNY 4 trillion in 2016.
