The Future of the UK Energy Markets Till 2020

Description: The Future of the UK Energy Markets Till 2020

Summary

Global Markets Directs report The Future of UK Energy Market to 2020 analyses key sectors in UK's domestic Petroleum industry. The report highlights that the UK has significant reserves of crude oil, natural gas and coal, and also has a large energy industry and efficient infrastructure to transport various fuels. However with the declining production of some of the large fields in the country domestic demand has increasingly been met by imported fuels in recent years. During the period 2007-2020 the demand for oil is expected to increase from its present levels primarily due to the growing demand from the transportation sector.

Scope

The report presents an in-depth analysis of the UK's oil and natural gas production and consumption, demand, petroleum products, refinery output and fuel prices, and import and export.

The key areas analyzed in the report include:

- Crude oil production in the UK is expected to decrease in the years ahead.
- Demand for energy in industrial sector will reduce especially due to the relocation of major energy-intensive industries to Eastern Europe and China.
- Refinery throughput in the UK is expected to lower marginally.
- The share of natural gas will decrease in the power sector.
- Household energy demand is expected to lower marginally.

Reasons to buy

- Benefit from rigorous primary and secondary research methods used by Global Market Direct, conclusions verified by industry experts and reliable data cross-verified with the original sources.
- Understand the key facts relating to energy industry and potential changes in the coming years.
- Understand the potential challenges and prospects in various energy segments such as the conventional and non-conventional arena.
- Fine tune marketing strategies.
