Pakistan Sugar Journal

Description: The Pakistan Sugar Journal (PSJ) focuses on the areas of agriculture related to sugar, milling and processing. The printing of research papers in the Pakistan Sugar Journal started back in 1985. The research papers published so far in the Pakistan Sugar Journal amount to 416, covering most of the areas on agriculture milling and processing. Research work published in the sugar world is also abstracted. It is distributed to various research organizations, universities and sugar mills in the country and abroad.

The Institute's BOG has approved a proposed panel of international referees to scrutinize research papers received from within the country and abroad for publication in the PSJ. This process will help improve the quality and recognition of the PSJ at both national and international levels.

The Pakistan Sugar Journal is published on a quarterly basis.
