World Health & Population

Description: The Journal of World Health and Population (JWHP) provides a forum for researchers and policy makers worldwide to publish original research, reviews and commentaries on health- and population-related topics.

The journal has an international scope, focusing on developing countries. Articles include evaluations of health and population interventions and would be of benefit to policymakers, administrators, academics, scientists and clinicians, JWHP encourages the conduct and dissemination of applied research and policy analysis from diverse international settings. It is the goal of JWHP to explore ideas, share best practices and enable excellence in healthcare worldwide through publishing contributions by researchers, policy makers and practitioners from these settings.

World Health & Population is part of a wider series of healthcare publications aimed at promoting exchanges between researchers, health professionals, policy makers and other stakeholders that yield innovative and effective healthcare ideas, policies and practices, in order to increase interdisciplinary capacity among researchers, policy makers, professionals, and corporate and institutional leaders.
