INDICATORS

Provides investors the current parameters set by the market. Indicators are updated every week, found in the Update section based on the initial indicators set by the latest Shortex positions found in the Indicators section

OUTLOOK

The Shortex Outlook contains 2 sections which consist of the Market Trend, and the Future Forecast.

The Market TrendGives investors a brief on the current conditions of the market, and expansions on specifics regarding the markets actions. This is updated every week.

Future Forecast Provides readers with an expectancy of the markets' fundamental and technical movement as background to the 7 long and 7 short positions listed in Shortex.

LONG POSITIONS

Illuminates 7 positions that are expected to perform based on their fundamental and technical trend. One issue that is featured called a Special Situation is listed as a result of its unique current potential (based often on its fundamentals, quickly emerging new product or overlooked product, oversold, or on the rebound). Each Position features a brief explanation of the companies' history and situation.

- Today's Price indicates the Current Price (when publication occurred)
- Buying Range indicates what the recommended area of purchase
- Near Term Objective indicates the objective of the stock price within 6 months
- Inter Med Objective indicates the objective of the stock price within 6 months to over 1 year.
- Stop Loss protects long positions if the stock movement takes a turn toward the downside.
- Investors can use options (calls) in place of the purchase of the issues.

SHORT POSITIONS

List 7 stocks that are determined to be ripe for shorting. (Where the investor sells a borrowed share on the anticipation of the decline of a stock, they can cover the position at a lower price thereby retaining the difference). The Short Special Situation indicates the position has a unique current potential (based on fundamentals, being overbought/over extended, or on the decline). Each position features a brief explanation of the particular companies history and situation.

New Positions are selected every three weeks

Weekly updates to the positions are updated each week

- Today's Price indicates the Current Price (when the publication occurred)
- Take Short Position provides the recommended area of selling a short position.
- Cover Short NR Term designates the range when the investor should cover their short position.
- Stop Loss protects short positions if the stock movement takes a turn toward the upside and limits the amount of loss.
- Investors can use options (puts) in place of shorting the issues.
